A – A range of sources have influenced the project demonstrating independence and in particular initiative with some of the choices made and reactions to set-backs. Relevant materials show planning, commitment, exploration and discovery.

B – High level of skill influenced by a clear desire to learn more about a theatre practice. A perceptive understanding of the area throughout the work, which is informed by practical exploration.

C – Clear level of learning and development. High quality of reflection throughout the portfolio with range of influences including connection to the course.

D – Register fully appropriate in terms of subject matter and format. Materials well selected and presented. Sources chosen inventively, and under word limit.

E – Visual and practical research clearly established a theoretical underpinning, which demonstrated a consistent ability to integrate and apply to the project; the theoretical underpinning was fundamental to understanding the development of the project.
